

Abstract

The invention provides a heating apparatus (1) for the conductive heating of melts, in particular for the rapid 5 melting-down, refining and/or conditioning of melts, which has improved cooling. For this purpose, the heating apparatus comprises at least one electrode (3), as well as a first cooling system with a cooling power which can be set and/or controlled variably.